

I have grave reservations regarding broadband over power lines. If the bleeding of signal to the surroundings is anywhere near as bad as claimed, I have no doubt that I'll be impacted personally because I live next door to a large powerline. I worry about interference with my computers, appliances and radio reception. Please don't mess with radio communications!!!